- Suggested Itinerary -

Day 1 - Depart London Aboard The Orient-express

Make your way to London Victoria station and board the distinctive brown and white liveried coaches of the British Pullman. You will be served a delicious lunch in the restaurant car as you travel through the countryside of Kent. Once you are in France, it's time to board the Venice Simplon-Orient-Express and enjoy a sumptuous dinner as you head south towards Paris. After dinner, head to the bar, complete with baby grand piano, where you can enjoy a nightcap before returning to your cabin for the night.

Day 2 - Arrive Verona

This morning you'll wake to the majestic scenery of the Alps and enjoy breakfast in your cabin, brought to you by your steward at your own convenience. The train twists and turns as it climbs up to the top of the Gotthard Pass, then down into Italy as you enjoy a 3-course lunch in the one of the opulent dining cars. All too soon, you will be pulling into Verona station where you disembark. On arrival, check in at the Grand Hotel des Arts (or similar) in time for dinner in the historic heart of the city.

Day 3 - Verona And The Opera

Verona boasts some beautiful examples of Roman and medieval architecture and is also a popular destination for visitors because of its connection with Shakespeare, who set two of his plays here. It's not known if Shakespeare actually ever set foot in Verona (or indeed Italy) but you can still visit the house and balcony where Juliet lived – and pined after Romeo. You have plenty of time to visit this and other attractions before your evening performance in the splendid Arena di Verona. You be seated on one of the rows of seats, rather than on the cold, stone steps so you can relax and enjoy the opera.

Day 4 - Verona To London

After breakfast in your hotel today, you can leave your bags and enjoy some last-minute sightseeing if time permits, or meet your transfer driver in the lobby and head straight to the airport for your flight home. TMR RECOMMENDS: If you would like to extend your holiday, why not travel back to London by train? Take a different route through the Alps such as the Brenner Pass, with a night in Munich en route.
